CONRAD CHUN

Vice President
Communications
Boeing Global Services

Conrad Chun is vice president of Communications for Boeing Global Services. Based in Plano, Texas, Chun is responsible for the development and implementation of the Communication strategy, global media relations, employee and executive communications, digital communications, government and customer relations, product and services marketing communications and promotion of the global business.

Prior to his role as vice president of Communications for Global Services, Chun served as director of Communications for Global Services & Support (GS&S), the services division of Boeing Defense, Space & Security. Based in St. Louis, Chun oversaw all aspects of communication for the rapidly growing military services business – and later led the communications efforts to integrate GS&S and Commercial Aviation Services (CAS) to establish Global Services as the third major business unit of The Boeing Company.

Before leading the GS&S Communications team, Chun served as the director of Communications for Boeing Military Aircraft (BMA), a division of Boeing Defense, Space & Security. Chun's responsibilities included leading the development and implementation of the communications strategy, internal and external communications, and customer relations for the division.

Chun joined The Boeing Company in 2010 after retiring from the U.S. Navy as a captain with 24 years of service. Throughout his distinguished military career, he held a series of high-profile communications positions, garnering experience in crisis communications, media relations, legislative affairs and strategic planning. Chun was special assistant for public affairs to the Chief of Naval Operations (CNO). In this role, he was the sole communications advisor to the CNO, providing strategic counsel on a vast portfolio of operational, budgetary and international issues and programs.

Chun is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. He holds a bachelor's degree in economics and a master's degree in information systems from the Naval Postgraduate School. Chun currently serves as chairman of the board of directors for Military Spouse Corporate Career Network (MSCCN), a nonprofit organization that focuses on employment-readiness training programs, job-placement solutions and no-cost services for military-affiliated spouses, retired military spouses and caregivers to war-wounded veterans and other personnel.
