

Amy Rossi

MSCCN DIRECTOR OF COMMUNICATIONS

Amy Rossi is a proud Army Spouse, married to Daniel T. Rossi. She is a founding member of the Military Spouse Corporate Career Network (MSCCN), a unique non-profit and nationwide, military-affiliated employment agency. The company provides services to connect employers in all industries with jobseekers who have a military affiliation. MSCCN offers employment services, job postings, resume review, advertising in online and print media, and participation in workshops and career fairs. Amy started her career with MSCCN in 2004.

Amy is a writer, entrepreneur, trainer, military family activist, and military spouse. She writes and trains about practical job search tools, career passion, military family strength, patriotism, what employers want, and military job seekers struggle in the corporate workforce. Amy is an innovator in military spouse employment and remained a strong advocate for the military-affiliated job seeker's need for training and extended support.

Prior to MSCCN, Amy worked as a subject matter expert on the Army Spouse Employment Partnership, was featured in numerous military publications, worked as an Employment Readiness Program Manager, Army Family Action Plan Program Manager, a Professor at Hawaii Pacific University, An Education Counselor, and a Marketing Executive. Amy also volunteers with numerous military organizations.

Amy's education, awards, and certifications include a Masters in Administration, Bachelors in Science, Myers Briggs Type Indicator Administrator, Strong Interest Inventory Administrator, Certified Job Search Trainer, a Certified Personal Trainer, A Group Fitness Instructor and Cornell University Credentialed Family Development Worker. Amy was a finalist for Military Spouse of the Year in 2010.
